

Michael A. Fütterer

Deputy Head of Unit at European Commission Joint Research Centre. Joint Research Centre de la Comisión Europea

Michael A. Fütterer has served as researcher, project and line manager at the JRC since 2002, and before in several companies in the US, Sweden and France. He holds a PhD in Process Engineering from ISTC Toulouse (1993) and a Nuclear and Mechanical Engineering Diploma from the University of Karlsruhe (1990). He manages JRC activities on innovative nuclear power applications and has more than 25 years of experience in project development for fission and fusion technology with focus on feasibility studies, system design/analysis for nuclear cogeneration, irradiation testing of fuel and materials. He is the current chair of the Generation IV International Forum VHTR System Steering Committee and guest editor of the Elsevier journal Nuclear Engineering and Design. His interests include the use of innovative technologies for the benefit of energy policy implementation.